Vaccination is done for diseases like Foot and Mouth disease, Anthrax, Haemorrhagic Septicemia, Black Quarter, Enterotoxaemia, Sheep pox, PPR and Ranikhet diseases, Duck Plague, etc.,

Since most of the diseases occur during specific seasons and specific areas when the situation is favourable for the outbreak of the disease, the farmers are requested to follow the vaccination schedule given below and to vaccinate their animals before the outbreak starts.

RDVK vaccination is done on every Saturday at Veterinary Institutions. In addition to creating awareness among the rural people and to controlling Ranikhet disease, a statewide vaccination programme against Ranikhet disease is conducted for a fortnight during February month every year.

Deworming

Deworming is done for all the animals at free of cost. The Advantages of deworming are:

1. The fertility rate is improved.
2. Milk yield is increased.
3. Weight loss is minimized.
4. Prevents delayed maturity.
5. Prevents high mortality rate among calves.
6. Improved quality of meat, skin and carcass yield.
7. Prevents spread of zoonotic diseases like taeniasis and trichuriasis.
8. Draught ability is increased.
9. Increases the health status of the animals.
10. It is advisable to deworm the young ones, two weeks immediately after the birth and once in 3 months and preferably before any vaccination.

DISEASE DIAGNOSTIC SERVICES

Various bacterial, viral, protozoal, parasitic diseases affect livestock and poultry causing huge economic loss to the farmers. Control and eradication of livestock diseases is a must, not only for profitable livestock production but also essential to make our livestock and livestock products globally acceptable.

For this purpose, one Veterinary Epidemiological Centre, 31 Animal Disease Intelligence Units and 3 Poultry Disease Diagnostic Laboratories are functioning in the State.

VETERINARY EPIDEMIOLOGICAL CENTRE

A new "Veterinary Epidemiology Centre (VEC)" was established in Chennai in order to carry out surveillance, monitoring and forecast livestock diseases in the State. It Monitors the Disease investigation activity of the Department, and Coordinates the activities of Animal Disease Intelligence Units and Poultry Disease Diagnostic Laboratories.

ANIMAL DISEASE INTELLIGENCE UNITS

Animal Disease Intelligence Units play a major role in developing a system of disease monitoring and surveillance of diseases affecting livestock that cause economic losses to the farmers with a view to evolve strategic control measures at District level. They map disease prone areas by collecting epidemiological information and data. This, in turn, helps the field veterinarians to take adequate protective and prophylactic measures well in advance.
